11m, 9f (children of various ages) / Unit Set / Runaways is a collection of songs sung by troubled children. While the subject is primarily runaway children from broken homes, Runaways also comments on the larger world in which the children live. / "Elizabeth Swados makes us eavesdrop on the sufferings of children. That sounds ominous but it isn't...The calligraphy of childhood is one of the wonders of nature even when the message it writes is heartbreaking." - The New York Times well worth the money and time for monologue choices. Real life tragedy

By heidi schlossberg

This is a profound and sad screenplay about kids who are homeless or abused. This is a great play for monologues for teens.. its a tough read.

Runaways, the script

By Margaret Kacsmar

I was pleasantly surprised to find that this even existed! It was exactly as described, and arrived even sooner than expected.
